

Wanted: Living History Players

Have you ever fancied yourself a bosun, mate, or deckhand aboard a square rigger or coastal schooner? Or perhaps a shipping agent, owner or pursuer? Are you harboring a secret desire to be a crimp or a cabin boy? Or are you more the type to work as a stevedore, engineer, harbor master, local merchant, union representative, messenger or maritime craftsman? And lets not forget those Victorian ladies—wives who went to sea with their husbands, sweethearts who've been waiting for their Jack Tars to return, servants, suffragettes, ferryboat passengers of all sorts, inhabitants of the Barbary Coast. Do you see yourself as a dreamer, reliving the days of your youth when your dreams of gold and easy fortune were shattered in the frozen North, or when you rounded the Horn with a hold full of grain, delivered ice to the tropics, or fished the great whales down on the line?

If so, we may have a place for you...

The year is 1901.

The place—Hyde St. Pier in San Francisco.

Live the dream each 2nd Saturday of the month,
March through December.

Contact Living History Coordinator Dave Hirzel at chips1901@sbcglobal.net.

